GEM NEWS

John Neumann, who was working at a Camp North of Edmonton, came back from Sardinia, B.C., Sat. 16th, where he had visited by his parents, Mr and Mrs Henry Neumann, formerly of Gem. John is now employed on a farm in Cassia.

Some of the farmers in the colony have already seeded part of their 1945 crop. In fact one farmer has seeded all of his crop for this year.

Gem and its surrounding districts had one of the worst snow storms ever had this winter on Wed. 24th, when in the early stages of the morning a terrific dust storm swept across the prairie. About 9:00 o'clock snow began to fall, but at noon snow had ceased and the sun began to shine again.

"If I ever have another chance like 1919 I'll know what to do with it." Did you ever hear a farmer say that? Perhaps, so far many older farmers who were farming in World War 1 have made that statement. What they meant was if farm income ever again reached the figure it did in 1919-top farm income year of World War 1—they'd save their expanded income rather than put it in high-priced land and expensive wartime equipment. Well, farm income is at its highest point ever. For 1944 it is estimated that the gross income to Canadian farmers will be about one and three-quarter billion dollars. The farmers of Canada again have a real opportunity to save for the future.

After the last war, many farmers wished that they had used some of their surplus money to set up a depreciation fund for their machinery and buildings during the period when prices were high. Then, new equipment could replace old, modern, implements could retire worn-out tools without undue strain on the farm balance. During the war, this is just one more reason why farmers are laying aside their savings in Victory Bonds—to await the day when machinery once more will be available.

What every housewife should know...

SUGAR FOR CANNING

For tasty, nourishing and economical winter desserts, most Canadian housewives will again do some preserving this year...jams, jellies and all kinds of fresh fruits.

Sugar is still very scarce. We must continue to conserve our supplies.

This year, the allowance for home canning will be the same as in 1944—ten pounds per person. Be sure to use your ration sparingly.

HOW TO GET SUGAR FOR CANNING

Instead of special home canning sugar coupons, twenty extra preserves coupons in Ration Book No. 2 are being made available for the purchase of sugar for canning.

These coupons are good for half a pound of sugar each or the stated value in commercial preserves, for they are the same as any of your preserve coupons.

You may use any other valid preserves coupons to purchase sugar, also at half a pound each.

No exchange is necessary. Your grocer will accept any valid preserves coupons when you purchase sugar for canning.

There are now only two kinds of coupons for sugar. The regular sugar coupon, good for one pound of sugar, and the preserves coupon, worth half a pound of sugar.

For the balance of the year, two "P" coupons for preserves will become good each month.

USE ONLY AS REQUIRED

The twenty extra preserves coupons for sugar for canning will remain valid until declared invalid by the Ration Administration. You do not have to use them immediately. You will be given plenty of notice of their expiry date.

GUARD YOUR RATION BOOK

If you lose your ration book, the extra preserves coupons which have already been declared valid will not be replaced. It is up to each consumer to look after his or her ration book.

PASSING

And The
PERMANENT

Propaganda

in India

"In Madras," says W.H. Warren of the Christian Literature Society, "we have had a striking example of the effectiveness of the printed page in the rapid growth of Communism among industrial workers during the last two years. Around any mill or factory, during the midday rest hour, one can see groups of workmen numbered anywhere from ten to two hundred seated around one of their number who is reading aloud from some Communist book or magazine. A steady stream of books, magazines, and handbills has produced a complete change in the outlook and mentality of the Indian industrial worker. Until we can get to grips with the masses as the Communist workers have done we shall make no impression."

FALSE MESSIAHS

Suffering Israel is always ready to hail a deliverer as her Messiah. Christian Life points out:

"Napoleon was acclaimed by the French Jews in 1806 as their deliverer. Had he been successful in Palestine in 1799 the Jews would have flocked to his banner. When he appealed to the Jews of Asia and Africa, he promised to give them the Holy Land and to restore Jerusalem to its ancient splendor.

"When the Jews met in the first Zionist Congress in Basel in 1897 one of their leaders declared that if the Sultan of Turkey should prove friendly to them, they would receive him as their Messiah.

"A Jew wrote in the Hebrew paper Liberal, published in Palestine an address to Mussolini Nov. 24 1933: 'Your Excellency, from the moment when you first granted me an interview in Rome ten years ago for the first time, I felt that, in your person, I saw the man for all persecuted people. The Jew and Arab, they will never be any greater than you, even in the coming generations.'"

And when the False Prince, the False Messiah, offers them a covenant in the time of greatest trouble the Jews will accept him, according to Daniel 9:27. Because they received not the love of the truth, and the true Messiah, God will send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie, and accept the man of sin the wicked one, 2 Thess. 2:10. It is that they may not be far distant.

Gospel Broadcasters Protest

When a Philadelphia radio station announced recently that it was cancelling their contracts, sixteen local gospel broadcasters held a mass meeting in Convention Hall to protest such action. The crowd of 14,500 people adopted resolutions to the effect that no radio station ought to refuse to sell time for religious broadcasting. Broad rights should be offered to all denominations, and listeners should be permitted to support the program of their choice. "We vigeously reject the idea that it is the business of the radio stations to enter into religion and to provide programs for the people," they said.

A Mark In Their Foreheads

Interesting, in the light of Revelation 19:16, is the report that wounded British soldiers are given a mark in their foreheads. Markings are painted on their brows with lipstick so that the medical staff will know at once what next to do with them at the field hospital.

Helping Our Missionaries

Someone in Washington has said that most of the war material we have in England and on the Continent will be abandoned when the war ends. Wouldn't it be fine if, instead of letting it be wasted, some of the jeeps, boats, planes, trucks and other military equipment be taken by missionaries to convert the heathen? Russia is willing to grant religious liberty to people of all churches including Roman Catholics, but does not favor the entry of foreign religious workers. Russia does not want outside groups to send missionaries, priests, or leaders into Russia to convert the heathen, and to train religious leaders.

Do We Deserve PEACE?

The government controlled radio in Great Britain (BBC) recently allowed a song to be broadcast which said, "I'm going to get it up, when the lights go on in London." Many Americans are planning to celebrate the war's end in the same way, instead of giving thanks to God.

A Timely Resolution

The Arkansas House of Representatives adopted a resolution calling for increased emphasis on spiritual values. It read in part: "That our children be reared in the precepts of fundamental righteousness. That the churches and Sunday Schools be constrained to intensify their work and to extend it to every child within their respective spheres of influence."

Grateful For Prayer

The boys of a Sunday School class in Atlanta meet each Sunday and pray, individually, for 143 Allied leaders. They have written to 83 of the leaders and told them of this, and all have replied promptly expressing their gratitude. "With divine guidance," wrote General MacArthur, "we cannot fail." Marshal Montgomery said, "I need the prayers of your boys."

Christianizing Japs?

Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Jr., who is leading the American forces in Okinawa, is kind to his men but not to the Japanese. "He says he wants to make Christians of all of them, and the only way to do that is to give them a Christian burial," said one officer who has served many years with him. It would be very unfortunate if anyone were to take this statement seriously. It takes more than a Christian burial to make a man a Christian.

Spiritualism In England

Satan and his servants are capitalizing on the grief of many whose loved ones have been lost in the war. Collapsing (April 14 1945) reports: "Spiritualism has become so widespread in England that today virtually all public halls are booked in advance for seances, even those so large that loud speaker systems have to be used to enable the vast audiences to hear the voices of the dead. Furthermore, faith in these voices is so strong that for example many women convinced they have heard the voice of a soldier son, have refused to believe a later official casualty notice that he was only wounded."

Catholicism In Russia

"I see no urgent need to ask Catholic priests to come from abroad to participate in religious affairs here," says the Chairman of the Soviet Council on Affairs of Religious Cults, Ivan V. Polansky. "I am confident that Russia's own talented and hard-working clergy is capable of serving the needs of the faithful, especially as the training of new priests already is proceeding." Evidently Russia is willing to grant religious liberty to people of all churches including Roman Catholics, but does not favor the entry of foreign religious workers. Russia does not want outside groups to send missionaries, priests, or leaders into Russia to convert the heathen, and to train religious leaders.

Apostate Jews

Jewry is not exempt from apostasy. One of the rabbis of the Shanhafner of Chicago says: "We have given religion to the world, but we have little ourselves. We gave God to the world, but we have little of God in our hearts. The Jews are not studying their Bible—other people are studying it. In our religious indifference is our worst ailment. We are troubled with the teaching of agnostic atheism materialism and Christian Science." Dr. McManis, the eminent scholar, declares, "The Jews now scarcely anything in common with the Jews of the Bible." In his induction sermon, the chief rabbi, Dr. H. H. H. said this emphatic admission: "Hosts of our men and women of tomorrow are losing belief in Israel's future and are drifting into unrepentant apostasy."

Some time ago I was preaching the Gospel of the Saviour to the Jews in the City of Sofia. Great interest was manifested by the Hebrew community from the first meeting, which I held at the "Trapez," the big theatre in the heart of our city.

It has always been my way never to permit any questions in public meetings, but to invite would-be inquirers to my home, where, away from interruptions and noise, which usually form a prominent and unavoidable part

ANSWERS for Victory Gardeners

Fertilizer should have been worked into the soil at planting time, because an application of fertilizer applied side by side with the growing season is also a good thing. However, the principal job of fertilizing should have been done before seeding. Spray materials may be scarce before the war is over and you should have had a package of lead arsenate to spray on the vegetables for the benefit of worms and other chewing marauders, and you should have a bottle or two of Black Leaf 40 in use on the aphids and other sucking insects.

Should I Use Fertilizer On My Garden?

Relatively few soils have available to the garden plants enough of material for their growth. If you have a sandy soil, or a store house of raw materials for the garden, then we will realize that when there is a shortage, our crop will suffer. However, there are several angles to the plant food question in the garden, as we will see further along in this article.

How Will I Know When My Garden Needs Fertilizer?

The vegetables you plant will soon tell you whether or not they are getting the right amount of plant food. If they are puny and weak, they are being starved. If they have a sickly yellow color, it is likely because they need feeding. If your garden vegetables have a bright, clean, healthy color and develop rapidly, you can know there is plenty of plant food in the soil for them. When spreading fertilizer, however, keep away from the seeds and plant roots, at least a few inches. If you do not, you will make the plants reach for it by sending out their roots. Otherwise they will "burn" the young sprouts.

Does Fertilizing Your Garden Help Fight Weeds and Insects?

The answer we might say is "yes" and "no." When we fertilize our garden, it makes it possible for us to raise a good crop of vegetables, but it does not make it impossible for weeds to grow. There is no reason why there is plenty of plant food for both weeds and vegetables, and you will still have to pull weeds. Being of the same green color as the vegetables, they are hard to see, and when you do see them, they look so small and harmless that you will almost think they are hardly worth bothering about. However, they are doing plenty of damage, and a dose of Black Leaf 40 is needed right away. Be sure to spray on the undersides of garden plants, as you are already spraying the tops of the leaves. Most of the insects will be out of sight.

How Soon Should I Fertilize My Garden and Spray Material? I hope you have already bought a good share of your

OLD MAN SWARTZ.

This is the story of an old and learned Hebrew scholar who was sent to re-convert the author to Judaism. What took place was recorded by Dr. E. Count who writes the introduction. The M. E. Board of Foreign Missions paid for the first edition of this remarkable story. Many interviews and many questions of utmost importance were asked and answered. This book will disclose to you the Psychology of the Jewish mind with reference to Christianity, and you will learn things you never thought of before. It will make you love your Lord more and more, and it will make you love the Word of the Lord. It will give you a new perspective of the Word of the Lord. This book was finally asked to try to be a Christian for 24 hours. Read what happened to him during that eventful 24 hours and how the Lord brought him to his knees.

My own study was too small to be of any avail for this purpose and Dr. Count readily consented to place his study at my disposal. One of the most interesting callers was a well-known Mr. Swartz.

"Old Man Swartz" was fanatically religious, liberal at heart and madly following the new precepts and commandments of Moses as well as the countless rabbinical traditions. "A disciple of Moses" they used to call him, as he crossed the main street on his daily errand to the synagogue where, in holy devotion, he habitually implied his Master to specially send the Messiah to deliver our wicked world from sin and iniquity. Having an amazing knowledge of the Old Testament, he often used to speak of it in a self-laudatory way. I soon convinced myself that he knew more of Hebrew literature than any of the learned Hebrews I ever came in contact with, either in America or in Europe; and I take pride in having met a good many. He was generally pointed out as "the most learned Hebrew in the Balkans."

The interviews I had with Mr. Swartz in Dr. Count's study were interesting and the public will forgive my feeble attempt to present them in this book."

It was on a Saturday afternoon, a beautiful day in August, when at half past two o'clock the bell rang announcing a caller. A few moments afterwards "Old Man Swartz" stood before me. He was a very old man and bent by the weight of years. His kind but curious face was adorned with a long, gray beard, reminding one strongly of the ancient patriarchs. He was dressed and looked anxious.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Silverstein. May I have the pleasure of a few minutes with you?" he asked.

"Why yes," I replied. "You probably attended some of my lectures on 'Real Judaism' at the theatre. I am at your disposal, and shall be happy to accommodate you. Won't you take a seat? Let me first introduce you to Dr. Count; he is an American and loves the Jews. All Americans do."

"I am happy, I am pleased," said, seating himself comfortably in one of the chairs I had pointed out to him. "Yes, I have come to talk with you. For some time I hesitated whether I ought to come and talk to you on religious matters, seeing you are so young and inexperienced, but I decided I would and here I am. He produced a varnished handkerchief, large enough to cover a small dining-room table and wiped the perspiration from his wrinkled brow. After a minute, during which he coughed and sneezed, he began speaking in a loud voice, hastily, and at times incoherently:

"Now, I want you to tell me what your object is in holding these meetings? Do you want the Christians to become Jews, or do you intend to turn the Jews into Christians? I confess, I cannot quite understand what you are driving at. But first, permit me to tell you that you are no stranger to me. I know you ever came here, you were a young man, little, and he showed me with a gesture of his hand how little I was when he first knew me. And your father, God bless his soul your father and I were such good friends! The foremost and most expensive place in the synagogue was always his, and the alms he gave away to the poor every Sabbath morning could have bought the King's palace. Ah, yes, he was a good Jew, and a pious one. And now to think that Abraham, his son, in whom he had so much confidence and fondly hoped would one day become a good Hebrew Rabbi—to think that his son should be running about the streets of the city and in a loud voice proclaim that 'Cursed One' as David, who speaks of the Jew that I had died before you came back from that Gentile country, where they turned your head and made a Christian of you! Why did God, blessed be his name, allow my old eyes see Abraham, the son of my friend Solomon, a descendant of the Bulgarian Jew that 'Cursed One' in terms which should be applied to the most blessed Messiah! And whom, pray, do you greet? Jesus! Mary! Joseph! What? Do you think we are fools? Do you think we do not know who Jesus was? Do you imagine that I, like you, do not know that He was an impostor, a deceiver, a nothing? You know, and we all know, that He was convicted of political treason against the Jews, and was condemned to die a criminal's death. Who was He, anyway? Was He not the son of Joseph and Mary? # Your Victory Loan Salesman Will Call on You Soon . . . Give Him a Friendly Welcome

Everybody knows what a comforting thing it is to have money where you can get it when you need it. So, in most homes, the Victory Loan salesman gets a cordial welcome. He offers an opportunity to you to help your country's war effort by just saving your money. In case of emergency you can get cash for your bonds at any bank . . . but you know that when you put savings into Victory Bonds they will likely stay there, intact . . . drawing good interest. Your savings are protected from your own temptation to use them. Buy all the Victory Bonds you can, with all the cash you have.

Buy More Victory Bonds on the Deferred Payment Plan With Money as You Get It!

And, to give yourself an objective to add to your savings, obligate yourself to buy more Victory Bonds on the deferred payment plan. Make a first payment of 10% or more when you order the bonds . . . and pay the balance with money as you get it, over a period of six months. Your Victory Loan salesman will give you a copy of the letter on the right. It is a request to your bank to buy bonds for you. Any bank will lend you the money to do this and the interest the bonds earn pays the interest on the bank loan.

You Needn't Get Stung.

Perhaps there isn't a living soul who hasn't been stung at one time or another on a second-hand purchase. Most people have bought clocks that wouldn't alarm, cameras that wouldn't click, mirrors that distorted and chairs that collapsed, and have paid far too much for the experience. But it's not necessary any longer to get soaked for worthless junk. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has established new ceiling regulations on a great variety of second-hand goods and musical instruments. When in doubt, get the list of prices from the nearest WPTB office.

Three Centuries of Wheat

The growing of wheat in Canada can be traced back approximately 340 years to the summer of 1603, when a French settlement in the Maritimes cut the first crop. Today one of Canada's leading export commodities, Canadian wheat was being exported as far back as 1754 to the tune of 80,000 bushels.

Canadian Dollar Is Bailey Bridge

"One more river to cross," hasn't meant such a problem to the Allied Armies as was feared, even when the enemy destroyed the bridge before retreating. Britain's famous 'Bailey Bridge' has been the answer to many an army man's dream. This invention of British Engineers has been adopted by the U.S.A. as well as the Red Army. It is a significant fact that the rough plans for this new design were made in 1940 during Britain's darkest hour.

The essential feature of the Bailey Bridge is its use of relatively light inter-changeable components. The standard sections are 10 feet long. The heaviest part can be handled by six men. Each section is joined to the next by one steel pin, as simply as constructing a model with a child's mecano set.

When the war is over Canada still has 'one more river to cross' back into peacetime living. How we will do this rests almost entirely upon the value of our money. That will be the golden bridge over which many will find their way back. If a dollar will still buy a good honest dollar's worth, it will be an easy crossing. Inflation gets a head start, the bridge will collapse bringing disaster and ruin to thousands of Canadian homes.

In nearly six years of war, the cost of living has risen only 17 percent. In plain everyday language this means that a dollar still has a high buying power, which is mighty good news in any country touched by war.

Research Council Studies Wheat.

Industrial utilization of agricultural products has been an important part of the work of the National Research Council during the past year. One promising opening has been the study of fermentation methods for making butylenes glycol from wheat. Recent work has shown that this intermediate product may be useful as an anti-freeze as well as being the basis of a large number of useful chemicals. In the course of these studies starch has been separated from

John Plett Jr. of Bassano and Dave Loewen of Gem, are working together on a farm in Tilley. John reports that its fairly lone some out there, but now seeing they have a car they might get around more often. We hope so anyway.

William Brown of the Tullibee Lake District pleaded guilty to a charge of "harboring a deserter" when he appeared in R.C.M.P. court at Lloydminster, Alberta recently. Brown was sentenced to three months in Fort Saskatchewan Jail for the offence.

Dependents of men serving in the army may buy bonds through army Victory Loan committees. This was announced at Victory Loan headquarters of the army today. It is understood that there are approximately 60,000 dependents of servicemen living in Alberta.

"All those who are dependent of army personnel should give the army credit for their Victory Loan purchases which they are now entitled to do," said Major J.H. Gainor, M.C., chairman of the army Victory Loan Committee, M. D. 13.

Textiles From Peanuts

Starting metaphorically with a bag of peanuts and an idea, chemists of Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd., have developed a new textile fibre which is wool-like, does not shrink and is not attacked by moths. Known as Ardl, this new material is composed of vegetable protein, while wool is of course an animal protein fibre.

After extraction of the oil, which constitutes 50 percent of the peanut, the protein content is extracted with dilute alkali, reprecipitated an dthen made into a spinning solution. This solution is processed like rayon to give a cream-colored, crimped, resilient staple fibre which resembles wool. It may be blended with wool, cotton or staple rayon, and yarns may be made on the worsted, woollen or cotton systems according to the type of fibre required.

Fabrics have been made purely of Ardil, the I.C.I. chemists report but its best use is likely to be in combination with wool to manufacture worsteds, woollens, tweeds and knitted fabrics. Fabrics containing 50 percent Ardil are said to be scarcely distinguishable from 100 percent wool. It is expected that Ardil will be cheaper than wool and so reduce the price

When mixed with cotton or rayon, Ardil changes the character of the finished fabric, adding warmth, fullness of handle, resilience and a crease resistance to the cloth. Suits coats and dresses have been made from such blended yarns and have behaved normally in wear.

Large-scale consumption of woollen goods in Canada is stimulated by our brisk climate. At the same time we rank among the world's largest importers of peanuts, which grow in vast quantities throughout the British Empire.

The fuller utilization of the peanut as demonstrated in the development of Ardii, suggests interesting possibilities of value to Canadians. Already, shelled and unshelled nuts and peanut butter are popular here, while peanut oil is used extensively for foodstuffs, such as vegetable shortening and salad oils.

Canada has little indigenous textile fibre production. New industry based on vegetable proteins stimulating wool ranks in interest with rayon and nylon, which are made respectively from cellulose and coal.

At present work on Ardil is at the research stage. No samples are yet available for distribution. It is unlikely that production on a commercial scale will get under way till after the war.
